

TURBO STUDY

TAKE out all your stuff - your notes and your book include tests and such – they each need a look Homework and quizzes were important to do and now will have help to offer to you

USE sense for your work spot right off the bat get light on the table and send out the cat Find now both some food and a drink but don't forget sugar makes it tougher to think

REMEMBER time is short – choose topics with care focusing on projects as a guess is quite fair Check the questions that were on past tests that they'll turn up again is a good guess

BE positive – this can all work out study with a friend – and neither of you pout 55 minutes an hour – remember what I said stop with a few hours to go and get to BED

ONE last thing – make a single sheet covered with the best go for ideas, not facts – those help the most on the test And this advice is not new -- no matter how you do it's much less of a ZOO -- if you study not ONE night, but TWO!

I know you hear ALL THE TIME not to cram for tests. I actually DISagree. Last minute TURBO STUDY can be a solid PART of you overall success plan. Notice 'part'? Take the advice of my little poem, and get the MOST out of it.

Good LUCK!
